U. S. CITIZENS REACH SHIPS AT NANKING

First of 120 Missionaries in City Begin to Arrive at Harbor Docks

BADGER WOMAN IS SHOT Miss Anna E. Moffet, Madison, Wounded Twice—Women Mistreated

Shanghai—(AP)—Wanton destruction and outrages, perpetrated by untrained Chinese troops in Nanking, are described in reports received Friday night from the trouble-torn city on the Yangtze.

American women were subjected to the greatest brutality during the anti-foreign rioting, the reports say, and in many cases their clothing was partly torn off by Nationalist soldiers in uniform.

The reports reiterate that practically all the outrages, both against persons and property were carried out by untrained Nationalists, thus fixing the responsibility for the outbreak on the Southern forces.

There is reason to believe that the majority of American homes and mission properties in the city were looted and burned. It is known that the Nanking Theological seminary and the Hillcrest school valuable American mission properties, were destroyed by fire. All the official and personal property at the American consulate was looted or destroyed by untrained Nationalists. A French priest is reported to have been shot with a pistol by a Nationalist officer.

MISSIONARIES ARRIVE Shanghai—(AP)—First of the 120 American missionaries who took refuge in Nanking university from the rioting Chinese began to arrive at the dock near the American and British warships at 7 o'clock Friday night.

Among them was Miss Anna E. Moffet, a daughter of the British consul general at Nanking, who was wounded by a bullet in the chest while she was a missionary in 1920 by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. She had been shot twice through the body.

American women in Nanking are reported to have been most brutally treated by the Chinese. It is believed a majority of the American homes and mission properties there were destroyed by Cantonese soldiers.

Dispatches from Nanking late Friday night indicated that the situation there was serious, with the remaining foreigners being evacuated. There had been no gunfire.

Authoritative advice from Nanking are that 150 Americans are still ashore. Several are feared to be dead, although the authorities are unable to determine this fact.

Thirteen foreigners killed in Thursday's fighting remains to be established. The only American missionary thus far confirmed is the death of Dr. J. E. Williams of Shawanee, Ohio, vice president of Nanking university. Bertram Gallagher, the British consul general at Nanking, who was wounded in Thursday's fighting has been rescued and is aboard the British cruiser Emerald.

COURT ORDERS HIM TO KEEP AWAY FROM BROTHER FOR A YEAR

New York—(AP)—Silence, if not peace, Friday descended upon the Carrington brothers who figured in a midnight case duel a month ago. For an entire year they are not to speak to each other.

The interdiction was one of the terms of a year probation imposed Thursday by a magistrate upon an older, Col. Edward C. Carrington of Chicago, wealthy 55-year old publisher of encyclopedia. Found guilty of disorderly conduct, the colonel was ordered to report Friday afternoon to a probation officer with other disturbances of the peace.

Any communication with his brother, Campbell Carrington, 52, of New York relative to suits pending between them, must be carried on by means of an intermediary, the court decreed and the colonel must do nothing "oral or physical" to inconvenience the younger.

To all this the colonel agreed with the comment, "I stayed away from my brother four years and I guess I can stay away another. I think I have shown considerable restraint all through this matter."

SAPIRO'S DEMANDS ON FORD MADE NO CHANGE IN POLICY

Editor Testifies He Laid Request for Retraction Before Manufacturer

Detroit—(AP)—Aaron Sapiro's demand upon the Ford-owned Dearborn Independent made no difference in the weekly's editorial procedure, William J. Cameron, editor, testified Friday in Sapiro's $1,000,000 libel suit against Henry Ford.

Mr. Sapiro, a Jewish immigrant, testified that he laid Sapiro's demand for a retraction before the automobile manufacturer, who also is president of the company, and that Ford dismissed it with a wave of the hand, and the remark:

"Well, if you are wrong, take it back. You are right, stick to it."

Cameron testified that by numerous inquiries the alleged libelous articles were investigated before publication and that he thought Fred L. Black, business manager, initiated an investigation after receipt of Sapiro's demand for retraction. The editorial department made no investigation, said Cameron.

"We can and will prove that these articles were suspended until April 12, 1924, at Henry Ford's order," said Sapiro's counsel to the court, but he said before he could complete a moment later he referred to the subject again with "Mr. Ford did not discuss retraction of these articles."

INTRODUCE MANUSCRIPT The manuscript of the first of the articles to which Sapiro objected was introduced into the court, but it was not read and it was brought out that Cameron had, in reading it, interlined in one place to limit the remarks to application to "financial Jews" rather than all Jews. "What were your conceptions at that time of an internationalism of Jewish finances?" asked Gallagher, but the answer was lost when Ford counsel objected and were sustained by the court.

In thumbing through the manuscripts Gallagher found one supposed to have been the fourth of a series but which was not published.

MEXICO, U. S. IN CONFAB ON BANDIT LOOT

Commission Rules Government Must Show Diligence in Giving Protection

BY DAVID LAWRENCE (Copyright 1927 by Post Pub. Co.) Washington—Acts of bandits are not always a basis for claims—this is the unanimous finding of the Mexican-American claims commission just announced. Its effect will be studied particularly in relation to disturbances in Latin-American countries generally, for the commission while confined to questions arising between the United States and Mexico is really developing international law on many points.

On the surface it would appear that American commissioners was concluding in a decision which made it difficult for American citizens to recover damages, and there are many cases of this kind pending. But the crux of the decision is that a constituted government must show due diligence in pursuing criminals or in rendering protection. If this is not manifested, then an "international delinquency" occurs. The commission says in part:

"Without attempting to announce a precise formulae, it is in the opinion of the commission possible to go a little further than the authors quoted (John Bassett Moore and French authorities) and to hold that the property of governmental standards should be put to the test of international standards and that the treatment of an alien in order to constitute an international delinquency should amount to an outrage, to bad faith, to willful neglect of duty or to an insufficiency of governmental action so far short of international standards that every reasonable and impartial man would recognize its insufficiency. Whether the insufficiency proceeds from a lack of diligence or from an intelligent law or from the fact that the laws of the country do not empower the authorities to measure up to international standards is immaterial."

MIGHT SET PRECEDENT The last sentence is considered particularly significant, for if the pending case of controversy results in a confession of property which are some day made the basis of claims before the general claims commission, the viewpoint might be held binding as a precedent. Mexico might claim that her laws prevented protection of the equities of American citizens but this according to the claims commission would be no excuse inasmuch as the claim of a foreigner is based on what are known as definite international standards of equity.

The American commissioner, Fred K. Neilson, while concurring in the decision reached his conclusions in a separate opinion. So far as the United States is concerned, the decision is important, because Mexico has prepared a number of claims for the killing in Texas of Mexican citizens, and the payment of damages will depend in those cases, too, on whether sufficient protection was given alien residents who broke the law and attempted to flee.

Hope of establishing the man's identity through a pair of shell-molded glasses with lead bridge and temple bars was dashed Thursday. The name on the case was that of Dr. J. W. He was unable to identify the glasses sufficiently to reveal the identity of the Rock River victim, having destroyed them.

PERFORM OPERATION ON 5-DAY-OLD CHILD Chicago—(AP)—Two surgeons successfully performed an operation on a 5-day-old baby Thursday by making an incision in the child's abdominal wall. They opened the esophagus and connected it to the stomach with a rubber tube. This operation was resorted to when doctors found the baby was born with a shortened esophagus, making it impossible for food to enter the stomach.

The child is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Kraut. Doctors said a second operation would be performed later to lift the stomach and sew it to the shortened esophagus.

SON OF CHIEF SETS PINS; SPEAKS MOST UNUSUAL LANGUAGE

Chicago—(AP)—Charles G. Bloch, son of a West African tribal chief, found setting up tents in a college bowling alley here, speaks a language which Prof. Edward Sapir of the University of Chicago, says is the most complicated he ever has known or heard of.

Facts concerning the language, described as five times more difficult than Chinese, will be given to the central section of the American Anthropological association meeting here Friday by Prof. Sapir and Bloch.

Professor Sapir, an expert on primitive languages, said he had learned some of Bloch's language, and now is directing him in the writing of Grebo proverbs, stories and a Grebo dictionary.

DECOMPOSED BODY PUZZLES OFFICERS ON MURDER TRAIL

Efforts to Identify Man Found in Rock River Wednesday Prove Fruitless

Janesville—(AP)—Still unable to identify the badly decomposed body of a man found in Rock River Wednesday afternoon with his head battered over his temple, authorities Friday were concentrating their attention on Milwaukee in the hope of learning the name of the victim.

Every mark and indication is that the man lived in Milwaukee authorities said. He had on a suit of clothes of good material bore the label of Seeger Brothers, Milwaukee, and contained addresses of many Milwaukee stores where he had made purchases. The writing was in clear but rather small, cursive handwriting. An inquest will be held here Friday.

An autopsy was performed late Thursday by Doctors T. W. Nuzum and G. K. Woolf, and later a second examination was made by Dr. W. A. Munn. The physicians refused to make even a guess on how long the body had been in the river. "It may have been a month, or it may have been all winter," they declared.

The physicians said there was evidence that a rope had been tied around the man's neck, there being a deep welt. Two of the physicians were not positive whether the wound over the temple amounted to a skull fracture or was a bruised bruise. Little could be learned from the examination because of the advanced decomposition.

Hope of establishing the man's identity through a pair of shell-molded glasses with lead bridge and temple bars was dashed Thursday. The name on the case was that of Dr. J. W. Bird, Stevens Point, now in Rhineland. A technical description of the glasses was made over the telephone by a Janesville optician to Dr. Bird. He was unable to identify the glasses sufficiently to reveal the identity of the Rock River victim, having destroyed them.

BILL TO RAISE INCOME TAX IS GIVEN SOLONS

Assembly Considers Measure to Repeal Personal Property Tax in State

Madison—(AP)—An increase in income taxes to make up for the revenue which would be lost through repeal of the personal property tax was advocated Friday when Assemblyman Wallace Ingalls of Racine, presented his substitute tax resolution in the lower house.

The assembly at the same session adopted Assemblyman Duncan's resolution which provides newspapers, associations of commerce and similar agencies with copies of a report by the United States Department of Commerce on the costs of state government in the nation. The Milwaukee assemblyman's resolution pointed out misrepresentations which had been made in recent years that government costs and taxes were higher here than in other states.

Assemblyman Ingalls' resolution came as a result of the lower house granting him permission to offer a substitute measure for his original resolution which made no provision for decreased revenue. Such permission was granted by the body several days ago after extended debate.

The substitute after striking out the words "personal property" wherever they appeared statutes amend the law on income taxes as follows:

PROPOSED CHANGES The first thousand dollars of income the tax is unchanged. The tax on the second thousand is increased from 1 1/2 to 2 per cent. The tax on the third thousand is increased from 1 1/2 to 2 per cent.

On the fourth thousand of income the tax is increased from 2 1/2 to 3 per cent. On the fifth thousand from 2 to 3 per cent. On the sixth, from 2 1/2 to 4 per cent. On the seventh, from 3 to 5 per cent.

On the eighth thousand, from 3 1/2 to 6 per cent. The provision for tax on the ninth thousand dollars is changed to a provision for a tax on the ninth to fifteenth thousand bracket and raised from 4 to 7 per cent.

Likewise the tenth thousand is stricken out, for a provision on the sixth to twenty-fifth thousand, with the tax increased from 4 1/2 per cent to 5.

Instead of a tax on the eleventh thousand the tax is imposed on incomes from twenty-six to one hundred thousand dollars and the tax increased from 5 to 9 per cent. Provision twelve is stricken out and a new one inserted for incomes in excess of $100,000, the tax being increased from 6 to 10 per cent.

3 DRUNKEN DRIVERS SINCE JAN. 1

Edward Heinzl Is Prohibited from Using Automobile for Six Months Pleading guilty to driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, Edward Heinzl, 715 W. Oklahoma, at Friday morning was fined $50 and costs and prohibited from using his car for six months by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court. In default of payment of the fine, Heinzl will have to spend 60 days in the county jail. He had not furnished the money by noon Friday.

Heinzl was arrested about 7:45 Wednesday evening on N. Superior-st. by Officer Carl Radtke after the motorist had featured his eventual journey along that street. He was directly responsible for two mishaps, all within the space of one block, police reported.

First he struck a truck belonging to Ed. Keller, 727 S. Story-st. that was backing up, bending the radius rod on the truck. Then he hit a gasoline pump in front of a garage, knocking the pump down. A broken headlight was the only damage resulting to his own car. The police department was called, and Heinzl was taken to the station, where he spent the night.

He was given a severe reprimand by Judge Berg, who reminded the driver that it was the second time he had been in court in little more than a week. The first time he pleaded guilty to a charge of drunkenness. Judge Berg advised him to go to work and quit drinking.

He was conducting a column "Fleeting Fancies" in the Chippewa Falls Herald when engaged by the Hearst organization to conduct a daily column of poetry and humor. "Quit Fight, Or Go Back To China," Tongs Ordered

New York—(AP)—"Back to China by the shipload, if necessary," was an ultimatum given by District Attorney Banton to the rival Hip Sing and On Leong tongs when he called upon them to attend a peace conference Friday. The Chinese consul general was invited to attend.

Barking guns that ended a two-year truce between the tongs took eight lives—three in Chicago, two in Brooklyn, one in Newark, one in Pittsburgh and one in Manchester, Conn. One was critically wounded in Cleveland and several others were shot in these cities.

Characteristic Oriental silence handicapped police in their hunt for the killers, although 45 Chinese were arrested in connection with the shootings. Police say Chinese gunmen are paid $2,000 a killing by the rival tongs. Chinese districts in the larger cities throughout the country were heavily guarded Friday by police against reprisals. Chinese merchants were advised by tong leaders to suspend operations until the outbreak ended.

If tong warfare continues in Manhattan, District Attorney Banton said, he will ask the federal government to interfere and deport those responsible. "If they can't confine their war to China," Mr. Banton said, "at least they can keep it out of New York."

Tong leaders here declined to explain what caused the outbreak. The tong warfare has no relation to civil disturbances in China. Zhang-Ling Chang, Chinese consul general in New York, told the Chinese Students club in Philadelphia Thursday night.

OWNER OF DAIRY AT KAUKAUNA TO BE SUED BY STATE

Industrial Commission Charges Rose Hill Dairy Violated Boiler Code The state industrial commission has requested the attorney general to start action against Roy E. Bohm, owner of the Rose Hill Dairy, Kaukauna, because of violation of boiler safety orders, and for collection of a forfeiture of $500.

Mr. Bohm, about two years ago, installed a second-hand boiler which did not meet the requirements of the boiler code. He failed to notify the commission so that proper inspection might be made, the commission charges.

On January 29, 1927, the boiler exploded, shrapnel being hurled into the air, and landed in a nearby field, the commission's allegations continue. "The roof of the building was blown off and the windows blown out. Although several men were working immediately outside the boiler house door, through good fortune no one happened to be in the boiler house at the time of the explosion."

"The commission is asking the attorney general to commence this action to serve as a warning to others who install second hand boilers that they must have an inspection made and approval of the industrial commission before using them."

CHINESE MAY MEET TERMS OF ULTIMATUM

Bombardment Postponed Until Saturday as Foreigners Begin to Evacuate

TURN GUNS ON WAR AREA American Destroyer Fired Upon Nanking While Guarding Refugees

Washington—(AP)—Within the last 24 hours nine American warships have been ordered to proceed at once to Chinese waters to augment the squadron of 21 fighting craft now there under command of Admiral C. S. Williams, commander in chief of Asiatic fleet.

Washington—(AP)—Preparations for a bombardment by American and British ships at Nanking has been postponed until Saturday because of a partial evacuation of the city by foreigners, which has been effected.

Notice has been served on the Cantonese commander at Nanking that salient military points would be shelled unless immediate guarantees of safety for foreign life were furnished. The bombardment was to have begun late Friday afternoon.

The decision to postpone the drastic action decided upon was required by the American and British naval commanders when it was seen that concrete results had followed the announcement of their firm stand.

Rear Admiral H. H. Hough, the American commander, reported to the navy department that the evacuation of Nanking was complete, that British marines were coming out of the city, and that there was fair possibility that 150 Americans who took refuge in Nanking university would leave Friday night.

The American destroyer William E. Preston, while escorting the refugee boat Kungwo from Nanking to a point below Kiangwan, was fired upon from Nanking points. The fire was returned by the destroyer's machine guns. Chinese forts above and below Chinkiang also fired on the Preston and the destroyer again replied by turning loose its four inch battery. No casualties to the Preston's personnel resulted.

REPORTS ONE KILLED Admiral Williams, at the time the report was forwarded, said he had been able to learn of the killing of only one American in Nanking, Dr. Williams of Nanking university. One British sailor on the cruiser Emerald also was killed by snipers firing from shore.

Japanese naval craft at Nanking landed a detachment of 50 men under cover of the guns of three destroyers. The situation along the Yangtze river was described by Admiral Williams as "tense."

Two hundred and fifty American missionaries had sailed from Hankow for Shanghai and other steamers are being held in readiness at Hankow to evacuate remaining Americans if necessary. A heavy movement of Chinese nationalist forces across the river from Hankow was reported.

DELAIS ACTION Previous to having sent the ultimatum and having authorized Admiral Hough, in command of American forces at Nanking, to use his judgement in dealing with the situation, Admiral Williams had sent this message to his fellow officers at Nanking:

"American, British and Japanese commanders in chief agree that if possible further drastic action should be avoided until General Chian Kai Shek (Cantonese war lord) has been given an opportunity to fulfill his guarantee to provide adequate protection to all foreigners."

Admiral Williams said he had concurred in the opinion of the senior British naval authorities at Nanking that a determined shelling of the military points in that city, avoiding as much as possible damage to civilians, was necessary. He said that he would guarantee the safety of lives and property of all foreigners in Nanking.

The Admiral said the local Chinese at Nanking had been notified that "First, We demand that a general of divisions command rank shall come here today by noon Friday and arrange for proper treatment of wounded foreigners ashore."

"Second, that if this demand be not complied with, Chiang's request cannot be guaranteed and we shall take such action as may be deemed necessary. Third, that the Chinese shall be taken today by the forces here, the foreigners are beginning to come out of the city."

MIGRATION OF DUCKS. SUREST SIGN OF SPRING

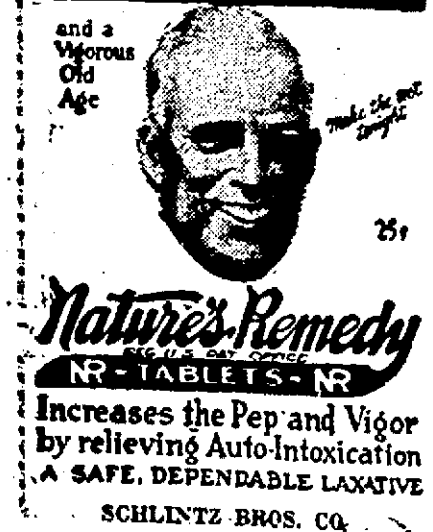

Persons who still are unconvinced that spring is here in spite of the official opening last Monday, need only to watch the skyline these days to still their fears. Several residents have seen wild ducks passing over the surrounding territory to the northern lakes.

It is said that a robin can be fooled because it always is anxious to change its field and even premature warm sunshine will bring out the flowers and open the rivers. But the wild duck, that bird of passage, can be lured from his home in the sunny south only after he has been guaranteed equally warm weather elsewhere.

Wisconsin Problems Can Be Solved as Easily as Pennsylvania's Speaker Says

Richard Sykes, temporary president of Appleton chapter of the Izak Walton League of America, James Wagg and S. B. Rindall, members of the chapter, and F. A. W. Hammond, of the Outagamie County Fish and Game Protective association, drove to Madison Thursday to hear Gifford Pinchot, former governor of Pennsylvania talk on conservation before the state legislature. Hundreds of persons from all over the state were in the Capital city to hear the talk.

Wisconsin's conservation problems are the same as those which confronted Pennsylvania when that state embarked on its policies of forest preservation, reforestation and protection of the wild life of the commonwealth, the speaker said.

The problems of this state can be solved as successfully as have those of the Keystone state. Intelligent leadership and the education of the people to the vital importance of the subject are required that these tasks, though difficult and tedious, may be accomplished.

Gov. Pinchot, characterized by Gov. Zimmerman in his introduction as the most conspicuous conservationist in the United States, prefaced his remarks by a tribute to Wisconsin's share in the early conservation movement and a eulogy on the service of President Van Hise of the state university, Senator Paul Hustung and Senator La-Follette, the elder, to the cause of conservation.

"The conservation policy," he continued, "covers the protection of all the great natural resources. It covers also the wise use of all these resources for the general good. Hence the question of monopoly in natural resources must be included also."

"I think we realize the need for action to save our forests, and with them, to save our industry, our transportation and our farming, for

MANITOWOC FUGITIVE DISAPPEARS AT CHILTON

Search for a fugitive from the Manitowoc Sheriff which turned toward Appleton Thursday, Friday was picked up at Chilton where the fleeing man is reported to have boarded a train.

The fugitive, one of two brothers all three are absolutely dependent on the forest.

"I am a forester, and I feel with peculiar force the profound and far-reaching peril which the nation faces in the prodigiously rapid destruction of our forests."

"For every thousand feet of new growth on the forest lands of the United States, at least 4,000 feet are cut or burned. For every upward step we take on the steep road to self-support in wood, we slip back four. With lumber prices what they are, already the prospect is black enough in all truth."

MAY ENLIST SCHOOL STUDENTS TO SERVE AS TRAFFIC COPS

Police Chief and Superintendent to Work Out Plan to Guide Children

A plan whereby senior high school students will be enlisted to act as traffic officers to guide grade and kindergarten school students across streets is being worked out by George T. Prim, chief of police, and Ben J. Ro-han, city superintendent of schools. The system has been tried in other cities in the state, including Milwaukee, and has been found satisfactory, it is reported.

The police force is too small to permit stationing an officer at all dangerous crossings to guard school children against traffic, according to Chief Prim. The motorcycle officer often as much aid as he can, but of course it is impossible for one man to insure adequate protection for all the children, he pointed out.

In addition to calling upon the high school boys, Chief Prim and Mr. Ro-han will designate certain corners which shall be used by the children. It is not definitely determined yet whether the extra traffic officers will be stationed at these particular street intersections only at noon and after school or in the morning as well.

Why we sell the DUNLOP TIRE

FOR 39 YEARS Dunlop has been build-ing the world's supreme tire. Dunlops wear longer because Dunlop knows how to build better at each vital point.

Take the hidden carcass beneath the tread. Dunlop owns its own cotton mills for no other purpose than to spin the best long-fibre cotton into the famous cable-twist cord that goes into this carcass.

The extra strength in these cords means an added factor of safety against constant load and pounding of roads—longer life and greater mileage.

The extra "stretch" enables the carcass to give under severe blows, and to come back into its original position without internal injury.

The Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known—wears slowly and smoothly, making sure that you get out of your Dunlops, all the extra mileage that added care and longer experience have built into them. We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car.

It was originally planned to hold it in June, but in order to take advantage of the new pavilion to be erected and the other improvements to be made to the park during the early summer the date will be changed at a joint meeting of representatives to be held in Menasha next Sunday afternoon.

It will be the first meeting of the picnic committee since its selection several months ago. A definite date will be decided upon for the picnic and committees will be appointed. As the picnic is for members and their families it is expected it will be attended by several thousand people. Plans will be made to make it an annual affair and to hold it in different cities each year.

YOUNG MEN'S CLUB HAS AMBITIOUS SUMMER PLAN

Menasha—The Young Men's club of St. Mary church held its first meeting in the newly decorated club rooms Thursday evening. It was decided not to hold the formal opening, however, until after the program and lunch. The club will have a baseball team this season but also a playground ball team and a tennis team. Arrangements are being made for a billiard tournament either next week or the week following.

RUNAWAY GIRL IS FOUND IN OSHKOSH

Anxious Search Ends When Cora Hahn Writes to Her Brother

Menasha—After a runaway course through the Fox river valley which led her as far as Green Bay and then back to Menasha, where she spent a week as housekeeper in a home on Mantowee-st., Cora May Hahn is now located at the home of friends in Oshkosh.

Corda disappeared from her parents' home on the Oshkosh-Winnebago-ave Wednesday evening, March 2. Efforts to trace her were only partially successful, and her whereabouts remained a mystery until she communicated with a brother in Oshkosh. Friends and relatives took her from Menasha to Oshkosh where she has been since.

On leaving her home near Oshkosh Corda walked to Neenah and then to Menasha intending to go through to Appleton and secure work. Near the outskirts of Menasha she was picked up by a party in a light coupe. Finding out that the driver of the car was bound for Green Bay she decided to go to that city.

With the promise of a position as housekeeper in Menasha Corda returned to the Twin Cities. Her identity remained a secret but a loneliness prompted her to write her brother.

How To Play Bridge

MR. WORK'S POINTERS ON AUCTION BRIDGE

The pointer for today is:

With King and one small card of the suit led in Dummy, and Jack and two small cards in the Closed Hand, play small from Dummy regardless of whether the contract is a Trump or No-Trump.

The reason for this pointer can be illustrated by the following hand:

Dummy (North)—Sp: A-x-x Ht: K-x-x D: J-3-2 S: J-3-2

Cl: K-x-x

Hand (South)—Sp: Q-J-10 Ht: A-10-2 D: A-Q-10-8 S: J-5-2

With a small Club the opening lead it will be noted that if Dummy should play the King of Clubs on the first trick, it would be more apt to win than lose, because the Ace is more frequently in the hand of the leader than in the hand of the leader's partner. But, as has been stated in previous articles, the difference is very slight, and if the Ace should be in the East hand and the lead should be from the Queen (as would then be most probable), the play of the King of the first trick would keep the Declarer from taking a single Club trick. By playing small the Declarer must make one Club trick, regardless of the location of the adversely held Ace and Queen. If both are in the leading hand, (West), the first trick will be taken by South with the Jack; if both are in the Third Hand (East), the third trick will be taken by South with the Jack; if West have the Ace and East the Queen, the Jack will take the first trick or the King the second. So, no matter how the adverse high Clubs are held, one trick must be made by the Declarer if his first play from Dummy be small. The play of the King, therefore, would be one of those

EXCAVATE FOR GARAGE AT SENSENBRENNER HOME

Menasha—C. R. Meyer & Sons company which was awarded the contract for John Sensenbrenner's new residence at Brighton beach has a crew of men and several teams at work excavating for garage and gateway which will be erected before the residence is completed. Very little excavating will be done for the residence, the basement of which will be above ground. The property will be protected from the lake by a concrete breakwater. The gateway will be completed by the middle of summer and the residence not later than the holidays.

15 TROOP LEADERS OF SCOUTS ATTEND FIRST ROUND TABLE

Headquarters Staff for Valley
Council May Be Organized Soon

Fifteen troop leaders attended the first of a series of monthly roundtables for scoutmasters and assistant scoutmasters of the Valley Council Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Leaders present, representing Kaukauna, Neenah, Menasha and Appleton, were Olin G. Dryer, Harold Brown, P. E. Millington, Donald McFarland, A. J. DuBois, Jr., J. L. Gross, Walter Fountain, Thomas Patterson, John Lloyd and John McAndrew, Fred Holzknecht, Thomas Paterson, John Lloyd and Robert Schwartz. Others attending were Scout Commissioner Walter Zwicker, William Schubert, chairman of the council committee, Frank Younger, chairman of the troop organization committee, John Eckrich, chairman of Troop 9 committee, Frank Sager, chairman of Troop 2 committee, P. O. Keicher, Valley executive, and John W. Pugh, Mr. Zwicker explained the purpose of the meeting, pledging to the troop leaders his cooperation and that of the council officers. At the roundtable the specific needs and problems may be brought closer to the attention of the council officers. Mr. Zwicker said, Mr. Schubert talked on special training in connection with out-door programs and weekend hikes, such as nature study, birds, trees, plant and rocks, and offered his leadership in that line. It was brought out that nine of the leaders present formerly were Scouts, which was considered a noteworthy feature of the change in leadership as a whole. The Scoutmasters explained their specific needs and asked about weekend trips, summer camps and the use of a council truck. It was suggested that the council organize a headquarters staff, consisting of older Scouts, who would be available as special instructors and emergency leaders for troops which may need their services. It was said that some troops have inadequate meeting places and hope was expressed that the schools might cooperate, giving the troops an opportunity to use school buildings, more especially gymnasiums. This has been done in many places, notably Detroit, where 163 schools either have troops or permit troops to use the buildings. The outstanding need in practically every troop is a better functioning troop committee. It was decided. Troop committee members often sign their names once a year and then forget the troop until the next signing time. Leaders present with special qualifications for specific tasks offered to help other troops and leaders in their line. Mr. Zwicker called attention to a troop meeting program which he and Mr. Zwicker had watched in action a few days ago. The program covered a full period from 7 to 9 p. m. and showed that the Scoutmaster knew at all times what he was going to do next and how long it would take. At no time during the evening was the leader more than four minutes off his schedule. The leader himself had only two periods on the program, an instruction period of 10 minutes and the closing three minutes of final instruction. It was decided to hold the roundtable meetings once a month. They will be organized as the ideal Scout troop, on the patrol basis. Two patrols were organized temporarily, an Appleton patrol and an out-of-town patrol. P. E. Millington was appointed temporary leader of Appleton patrol and A. J. DuBois of the out-of-town patrol. Mr. Keicher will be temporary Scoutmaster. It was decided to hold the roundtables on the last Wednesday of each month. The next will be held at Armory G, at Appleton on April 27.

TAXPAYERS CHANGE MIND ABOUT PAVING W. WASHINGTON-ST

Property Owners With Most
Frontage Want Pavement
Laid This Year

Taxpayers on W. Washington-st. apparently have changed their minds since presenting the petition to the common council opposing paving of that street, as answers to a letter issued by the mayor last week show that seven property owners with 542 feet frontage on that street favor paving this year. Only three, with a total of 155 feet, oppose the project. There still are three property owners to be heard from, according to the mayor, but they do not hold sufficient frontage to change the vote. The city also owns about $80 feet on the west end of the street. Several weeks ago the property owners presented a petition asking the council to abandon the project on the grounds that the filling made on that street two years ago had not sufficiently settled. When the paving contracts were let by the council last week, this project was held up pending further investigation. Alderman C. D. Thompson of the Second ward said he thought the contract could be let because he had canvassed the property owners and they had changed their minds.

GAS TAX IS RUINING BELOIT GAS STATIONS

Beloit—Wisconsin's 2-cent gasoline tax is costing Beloit filling stations $72,000 a year, it was asserted in a protest presented to the Beloit Commercial club by gasoline dealers here. The Beloit dealers have been paying the tax themselves, rather than passing it on to the customer, in order to prevent motorists from crossing the state line to fill their tanks at tax-free stations on the Illinois side. This practice is likely to force them out of business if it is indefinitely continued, they maintain.

The Commercial club voted to endorse their plea for enactment of a bill now before the legislature, which would exempt gasoline sold within two miles of the state line from a tax heavier than that, if any, imposed on gas sold on the other side of the border. If passed, the bill would make Beloit gasoline tax free. When the Wisconsin tax first went into effect and Beloiters began crossing the line to buy tax-free gasoline, prosecutors were threatened from Madison against "insolent bootleggers." Beloit dealers say that before they began paying the tax themselves their sales fell off nearly 50 per cent.

Each Indian on the tribal roll of the Osage tribe was allowed $2,500 to do his Christmas shopping.

The aldermen thought it would be safer, however, to take a direct vote. It is likely that the contract will be let by the council at the next regular meeting.

ALL FRATERNITIES HAVE SAME IDEALS, PURPOSES

All fraternities have the same kind of ideals and are organized for the same purpose, Thomas Arkle Clark, dean of men at the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill., said in an address on What a Fraternity Means at the luncheon meeting of the Lawrence College Interfraternity council Wednesday noon at Hotel Northern. National fraternities get together to talk over problems of their own chapters, and in the same way every campus should have an interfraternity council that the individual organizations may cooperate and work together for a single aim.

Problems of fraternities at the University of Illinois and on other campuses were discussed by the speaker and questions on fraternity policies at Lawrence were answered by him. Dean Clark is well known throughout the country for his writings and discussions on fraternity and other college institutions. He spoke to the student body at convocation services Wednesday morning on How to Get the Most out of College.

COOLIDGE INVITED TO WISCONSIN

President Coolidge has been formally tendered the Frank E. Murphy home at Horseshoe Bay in Door county for his summer residence. Other estates of a more palatial nature have been offered the president in Wisconsin, but at none of them can the surroundings and natural environment compare with the site in Door county. Considered from any and all standpoints the peninsula of Door county, washed on one side by the waters of Green Bay, and on the other by Lake Michigan, is the most charming piece of outdoors in all Wisconsin. It has the advantage of wide reaches of water, which afford a more pleasing prospect and a better climate than the shut-in lakes of the interior. Its natural scenery is unsurpassed, with rocky bluffs and headlands alternating with bays and inlets and lovely islands, stretches of sand beach and incomparable woods.

Moreover, there is a primitiveness about the country in Door county and a simplicity of its people that make it a source of keen interest. The quietness and quaintness of its villages and rural life are most fascinating, and it is so off the beaten track that it has not yet been ruined by hordes of tourists. Fishing, motoring, boating and bathing are of the best. It offers an opportunity to the president to study one of the most successful cooperative organizations in the central West, while he is on the border of the richest industrial and agricultural section of Wisconsin, the Fox River valley. Although unaffiliated with railroads, the peninsula is in convenient and quick communication with Washington.

If the president wishes to be near to nature and to enjoy a vacation that will not be disturbed by obtrusive visitors, he would choose a place like Horseshoe Bay in preference to the magnificent estates offered him at some of Wisconsin's leading resorts. The location and surroundings are ideal and it is, as we have said, the most alluring, most picturesque and most delightful nook of all beautiful Wisconsin.

PISTOLS BY MAIL

One of the bills that got through congress and was signed by President Coolidge was the Miller bill, making it unlawful to send revolvers, pistols or other weapons through the United States mail. It is the final step in a fight of over ten years for such action by the federal government, the only agency that could really act in the matter.

The measure provides that pistols, revolvers and all other weapons capable of being concealed in the pockets or on the person shall hereafter be unavailable. That it may not be a hardship upon those who may have a right to purchase such weapons, however, there is incorporated in the bill a section which provides that commissioned peace officers, the army, navy and marine corps and watchmen sworn in as deputies or special police may buy such weapons on proof of identity. Reputable dealers may also secure pistols for sale over the counter pursuant to the laws enacted in the several states.

The result of the passage and approval of this act will be to make it harder for gunmen to purchase weapons. Up to this time it has been possible for lawless characters possessing as little as five dollars to send away any one of a hundred places advertising guns for sale and have a pistol sent through the mails. This procedure has of course nullified the efforts of many states to regulate the sale of firearms.

As a matter of fact there should be thorough and complete control of the whole situation by the federal government. It is one place where federal control would be preferable to state control, for it would be universal throughout the nation and the ruling be as applicable in Maine as in California. The Miller act is undoubtedly the first step in the proper direction.

EDISON AND THE GREAT PERHAPS

The discoveries of modern science, says Thomas A. Edison, favors a belief in the immortality of the soul.

Thus does one more man of science offer an affirmative answer to the age-old question: "If a man die, shall he live again?"

Edison's life, so to speak, has been spent in the laboratory.

For many years he has busied himself with test tubes and chemical equations and electrical devices. He has been, as it were, the poet of materialism, the prophet of the machine, the worker of miracles in inanimate objects.

He has even conferred a kind of immortality on his fellow men. Caruso is dead; yet Caruso, because of Edison's genius, still sings. The "golden voice" was not choked by the grave, but rings on as vibrantly as it did when Caruso lived.

Now men who work miracles of this kind are not, ordinarily, men of any great faith in a soul or a hereafter. They are accustomed to exact figures, to demonstrable proofs, to reactions that they can see and equations that they can set down on paper. They do not like to accept anything that they cannot prove.

Many of them are skeptics, and some are out-and-out atheists. It is a debatable question, some hold, whether our scientists have not done us more harm than good, in that their gifts to us have been accompanied by a materialistic, doubting philosophy that, for many people, has robbed life of joy and the world of hope.

Edison's statement is like a breath of fresh air.

It is a helpful reminder that science has not settled any of the questions of the spirit; that the soulless philosophy of a scientist like Haeckel, for instance, is only one man's opinion and not a creed to which science as a whole subscribes.

Edison, nearing the close of his life, is like Voltaire, greatest of all skeptics. Edison, at 80, remarks that a belief in immortality is, after all, comforting and reasonable. Voltaire, dying, conceded the same thing with the remark: "I go to face a Great Perhaps."

OUR TRADE POWER

How largely the United States has come to dominate the European markets is seen in the energetic activities of Herr Rothberg, German financier, to form a vast German-French-British consortium in potash, coal, iron and steel in order to combat the rising tide of American domination. Herr Rothberg, it will be remembered, was the guiding hand behind the formation of the powerful Franco-German potash trust right after the treaty of Locarno and was also instrumental in the formation of the iron, coal and steel agreement between the two nations.

Such a combination would be one of the most powerful industrial alliances in the world, and, by the elimination of competition between the three nations and the pooling of profits, would give the United States the stiffest possible competition in the further development of European markets, or in keeping what has thus far been won.

OLD MASTERS

Creep into thy narrow bed,
Creep, and let no more be said;
Vain thy onset! All stands fast,
Thou thyself must break at last.

Let the long contention cease;
Geese are swans, and swans are geese,
Let them have it how they will!
Thou art tired; best be still.

They out-talked thee, hissed thee, tore thee?
Better men fared thus before thee:
Fired their ringing shot and passed,
Holly charged—and sank at last.

Charge once more, then, and be dumb!
Let the victors, when they come,
Find thy body by the wall.
Matthew Arnold: "The Last Word."

GOING A-COURTING

Your blade of the gay nineties used to pay court to his lady. Nowadays he pays the court costs and claims. Alimony is derived from the papyrus, meaning "all the money" you can get. A Michigan man was too jealous to let his wife go out for groceries, she charged. Every time she brought home a cucumber he saw her. A Chicago man committed suicide because his wife wouldn't believe him. But no general mobilization of the marines to stop a national wave of this sort is expected at this writing. The Chicago judge, who has heard 22,000 divorces ought to conduct a column of boxing coach, for the Congressional Record. In some parts of Africa a man has to kill five jaguars to marry two wives. What's that for—practical?

The general assembly in an eastern state is considering taxing amusements. If this is carried along further perhaps the various state legislatures can be made to pay their way.

THE AGE OF INNOCENCE

In 3,000 answers received from a questionnaire on the instruction of children about human life and reproduction (not about sex), some 500 ballots cast by women, girls, splinters, wives, mothers and even a few grandmothers, gave the ages at which these women had received their first knowledge about the subject. The average age was given as 11 years. The average age at which these same women received proper instruction was 15 years.

The first knowledge received by the girl aged 11 years is not nearly so bad as it is that which the average boy of 9½ years receives. In nearly 200 of the 500 ballots tabulated the woman describes the first knowledge as wholesome. But even so, in the other 300 instances the first knowledge that comes to the little girl is bad.

So where do we get that age of innocence? Just to indicate the character of the first knowledge the girl acquires let me briefly cite from these ballots some of the sources, as mentioned by the voters:

Schoolmates, rude (13); girl friend (13); schoolmates, impure stories (6); evil stories of older children (8); evil stories of older children (4); mother explained where babies came from (12); a passing tramp (10); father's office helper (13); lewd writing on walls of school building (9); whisperings of a visiting cousin (9); quick doctor pamphlet (9); vulgar woman, brutally told (11); mother told after questions about observed life of animals (11); girl friend told what her mother had told her (11); older sister instructed her (12). The figures in parentheses indicate the ages at which these women received the instruction.

It is deplorable enough when little boys are given false information or obscene facts, but it is horrible to think that so many little girls receive bad instruction about this sacred matter several years before it occurs to their parents to give them proper instruction or to see that they get it.

One impression I get from this referendum is difficult to indicate here. It is that the happiest folk seem to be the men and women who were fortunate enough as children to receive vague instruction from the first. The happiest mothers seem to be the ones who have a daughter, begin to show natural curiosity, having confidential talks, intimate little visits, "secrets" with the little mother to be. The fathers I can't most are the ones who are real chums with their boys and chums whose word the boys will take against the world.

A similar study made by the public health service when we were preparing for the world war indicated that the average age at which boys receive their first knowledge, good or bad, but mostly bad, was then 14 years, and the average age at which they received proper instruction was 15½ years—an interval of six years during which parents fondly trusted to "innocence."

With girls the innocent age is probably considerably less. It is with boys, yet this referendum seems to show that it is by no means as simple and sweet as old fashioned folk like to believe. Girls get their first knowledge at 11, and their first proper instruction at 15. In two out of every five the first knowledge is wholesome; in three cases it is bad. The good knowledge comes six years too late, just as it does in the case of boys.

One Thing the Flappers Absolutely Refuse to Economize On

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

MAKING HAY WHILE THE SUN SHINES

Have you noticed that considerable number of the so-called "best magazines" are printing articles from the typewriter of Will Durant? Just pass through a few of these publications for the past few months. You are certain to run across several articles by Durant.

Now turn to these same magazines of a year ago or of two years ago. You will find a single article by Will Durant in a single one of them. In those days the person who wished to read Will Durant had to go to very obscure publications that were hardly respectable. One of them was an obscure monthly published in Girard, Kansas, called "Life and Letters."

Another was "The Hildebrand-Julius-Weekly," published by the same firm. I read some of the chapters of "The Story of Philosophy," or at least the material of those chapters in "Life and Letters" several years ago.

Will Durant submit his manuscripts to the "best magazines" in those days and is that the reason why most of us who confine our reading to such respectable publications have heard of him and had no opportunity to read him?

I am not in Will Durant's confidence and I have no means of knowing whether or not he submitted his articles to the respectable publishers. But I would dare to bet on it that he did. We are told that he has been working on "The Story of Philosophy" for eleven years. He was not a rich man who could afford to overlook a good chance to make money with his pen. During all these years, it is almost certain that he tried the literary markets for all there was in it. The fact that he was willing to have his work appear in a poorly printed Western weekly seems to prove conclusively that he would not have declined to be represented in the table of contents of "Harpers" or "The Century" or any other first-class magazine.

It does not take any extraordinary amount of perspicacity to know that the editors of those magazines rejected Durant's articles—in many cases probably the very same articles that they are now printing—and about which their editors are so eloquent. If it is not the same, at least articles like it and probably just as good or better.

The reason is plain to be seen. In those days Will Durant was a nobody; he had never published anything and he was without an "audience." Today Will Durant is the author of "The Story of Philosophy," a book for which over 100,000 copies have been sold in the United States have been willing to pay five dollars. He is a well advertised writer and so his articles have a market value. Hence the editors of the "best magazines" are willing to buy them and pay good money for them. A perfect illustration of the "Bible passage," "To him that hath shall be given." When Will Durant had neither fame nor money, no one was willing to give him anything.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

NESTS ON A RAFT

BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President, American Nature Ass'n.

The coot is a water bird, closely resembling a small duck.

It is hatched on the water; it eats, sleeps and lives on the water, and when the autumn sunners besedge the marshes thousands of its family die on the water.

Even when the time comes to build its home, brood its eggs and hatch its young coots, this bird does not go ashore.

Now that he has both, editors force more of them on him.

I am not at all blaming the editors of the "best magazines" for rejecting the same articles a year or two ago that they now are willing to pay well for. It is good business and it you or I were in their places we would do exactly the same thing; we would place great value on the same article after it has acquired advertising prestige that we would consider worthless before.

There is no objection to that, provided the editors are honest about it. But frequently they are not. We find them indulging in all sorts of hidden talk about how eager they are to discover new writers, how real talent is always welcomed, how they are much more delighted over an article I promise by an unknown writer than by a well-advertised name. They all say that kind of thing and apparently they believe it themselves.

But for myself I have always felt that it was nine tenths "blab." Of course they like the prestige of having discovered a new writer who becomes popular and they take many chances in that gamble. But they are not as eager to discover work of talent or genius that won't sell as they often pretend to be. They often reject the Will Durants while obscure and then take them up after they have made a hit. No objection to the practise itself, but to the pretense that they don't do it.

The Question Box

Q. What is the electronic theory? F. T.

A. The electronic theory is the theory that the chemical atom is not the smallest possible part of an element, but is composed of electrons describing orbital and vibratory motions.

Q. What per cent of the American women earn wages? F. L.

A. Over $500,000 women are wage earners. One in every five wage earners is a woman. One in every five women is a wage earner.

Q. I am getting Port au Prince, Haiti, on my radio but do not find the station listed. Can you tell me anything about it? H. B. T.

A. The station to which you refer is Station HHK, a government station operated by the Haitian government Port au Prince. It operates on 361.2 meters, and its power is 1080 watts.

Q. Who was Mrs. Thomas Jefferson before her marriage? D. P. E.

A. Mrs. Jefferson was the daughter of John Wayles, a lawyer of Virginia. She was a widow at the time of her marriage to Jefferson. Her first husband, Bathurst Skelton, died before she was 20 years old.

Q. In the days of smoky, sooty fireplaces and other poor housekeeping facilities, how was it possible to keep person and clothes clean without soap? W. B. G.

A. The manufacture of soap upon a very large scale dates only from about 1823. The use of soap is of great antiquity. A well equipped soap factory was found by the excavators of Pompeii. Historical records of Italy and Spain show that soap was in use in those countries in the eighth century. The soap berry was used before soap was manufactured.

Soap berry is the common name of several species of Sapindus and of the fruits which are so rich in saponin that they were employed for the same purpose as alkaline soap before the days of that article. The Chinese prefer them even yet for cleansing the hair and delicate silks.

Q. Are the schools of the United States giving more time to the study of manual arts than formerly? O. C.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—The wild west may have its tough riding buckaroos, but when it comes right down to judges of horse-flesh this almost horseless town is hard to beat.

Some of the world's finest stock is collected for the riding and racing stables of the rich New Yorker. Highly paid experts who once graced the wide open spaces content themselves with two rooms and a bath, operating riding schools for society debutantes.

From Fifth Avenue and Madison Avenue mansions are operated some of the coldest stock farms of the nation and the annual horse show brings out the fact that ballrooms and salons of the social set produce women riders whose daring would surprise the crack riders of the wild west shows.

Their spirit and daring frequently lead to mishaps quite as serious as those to be checked during a rodeo. Death and injury have come to scores of beautiful young women whose great wealth and prominence, one would think, would incline them against risk.

For some 40 years one old fellow held forth at a riding academy, retiring only when his eightieth birthday had been passed. A lover of horse-flesh, he resented the gradual intrusion of the automobile. He made a fortune teaching the society folk how to ride.

One day he discovered that his son had become an automobile salesman. This from a job was a bit too much. He quit and took an apartment on Fifth Avenue overlooking a spot in Central Park frequented by riders.

Central Park, by the way, has a shepherd.

Perhaps there is no more incongruous job in this great city of 6,000,000 people than a shepherd caught in this welter of noise and traffic.

For many years a flock of sheep have roamed the narrow range of Central Park and for 27 years Frank Hoey has attended them.

His herds, like those of his brothers in the backland, begin at sun-up.

While the taxis are rolling their night club hangers through the speedlines of the park, he comes on the job, meeting the milkman and the rounder alike.

A shepherd dog aids him, for the flock numbers 50.

His pasture is looked down upon by the most elaborate of the Fifth Avenue mansions, and children of the ghetto who never before saw a live sheep, cow or hog trail him in awe and wonder on Sunday afternoons.

Hoey thinks he has the best job in New York—and he is inclined to think he has. His life is as rural as any farmer's and his bedtime is that of the faraway rural communities. The city does not intrude on his life and he is in the precious position of one who can live his healthy outdoor life and at the same time, listen to the call of the great city whenever he so wishes.

that 72 per cent of the cities studied increased their time allotment for the manual arts in the last ten years.

Q. What was the property loss by fire last year? E. M. L.

A. It is estimated that $750,000,000 worth of property was destroyed by fire last year, and one person every half hour lost his life.

Q. Do the bluejays and the orioles rob nests? F. K.

A. Bluejays are notorious robbers of the nests of other birds. Orioles are not.

Q. How much does the pitch of a man's voice vary from that of a woman's voice? N. A.

A. The pitch of a male voice may range from 100-300 vibrations a second, and of a female voice from 200-600.

Q. What are agricultural museums and where are some located? G. D.

A. Agricultural museums are found in Switzerland, Germany, Denmark, and Holland. The collections consist not only of minerals, insects, agricultural products and by-products, but also contain models of farm animals, models and specification of agricultural implements, illustrations showing the advanced state of scientific investigations of insect pests, and the manner in which they attack. These collections are usually in connection with some agricultural school and are used for purposes of illustration and demonstration. One of the largest of these museums is located at Berlin in Germany.

Q. Was the famous Portland vase made of glass or pottery? D. H.

A. Although this vase was manufactured by Josiah Wedgwood at his pottery works it was not, as many are under the impression, of ceramic fabric. It was of glass, cut came.

HIGHWAY MAGAZINE DISCUSSES SCHOOL AND OTHER THINGS

Recent Upheaval in Wisconsin Highway Commission Is Refreshed

Madison—(AP)—The sixteenth annual Road School and "other things" are discussed in the current issue of "Badger Highways," official publication of the Wisconsin Highway Commission.

The commission, during the road school, elected J. J. Kuehling as state engineer in place of John T. Donaghy, and shortly thereafter became the center of a legislative investigation because of Donaghy's dismissal and the charges of secretary M. W. Torkelson upon his resignation. That equipment and materials companies were obtaining control of the highway body.

The official magazine, sent to engineers and highway officials yesterday, devotes two pages to detailed recounting of the episodes during and after the road show.

The article carries, on the first page, a picture of Mr. Kuehling, and on the next, pictures of Donaghy, Torkelson and M. O. Anderson, the highway commission whose term expired shortly after he had voted against Donaghy's dismissal.

The humor of the switch in interest from the road show exhibits and addresses to the departmental troubles is carried in the first few paragraphs of the "Badger Highways" story.

"I hereby take special pains to mention that the sixteenth Annual Road School took place from January 24 to 28 at Madison. This has become a great institution of learning, and the lessons that may be learned there are exceedingly valuable and sometimes of vital importance. The registered attendance of 1,111 broke the previous high record by over 100. In other respects no one is in a position to say whether the Road School was a greater or lesser success than usual, in view of the fact that the speeches have not been published and nobody paid much attention to them when they were delivered.

"There was no competition for attention—we didn't mean to imply that; the fact of the matter is that the Road School never had a look-in after the first day. Those speeches which were regularly scheduled on the program and then duly delivered in accordance therewith will be published later on in a special edition of "Badger Highways." This disposes of the Road School as such, and we can now proceed to chronicle the "other things."

The article then takes up, in chronological order, the events previous to the legislative investigation. "Certain newspaper editors" who "followed up the advantage which the situation afforded for expanding it to the utmost, giving full license to their already distorted imaginations and totally disregarding any journalistic code of ethics."

It then gives the statement of Dean F. E. Turney, of the college of engineering, University of Wisconsin, an account of the legislature's vote to investigate the commission troubles and the commission's statement to the investigating committee.

Students Reviving Old Sport Of Roller Skating

Students are growing more youthful in other ways than the length of dresses this spring, judging from the number of roller skaters seen on the side streets every evening. Skating parties have become the elite social occupation among high school girls and some who no longer are adolescents.

Boys, to ridicule the girls, are reported to have revamped old scooters. Whether the fad has been original with the high school students here or whether it was copied from the colleges and universities is not known.

Said Wadhams 10 years ago

It was just about then that gasoline had established itself as one of the "major" commodities. Already greedy profit-grabbing had begun to creep into the picture. Quality-cutting was easy—and the cutters got busy and worked fast.

Then it was that Wadhams definitely declared itself for quality—quality regardless of the bigger profits and "easier" selling price made so temptingly possible by the numerous squeezing and adulterating processes then invented.

Steadfastly, at the risk and hardship which always attend the sale of goods at above the accepted market price, Wadhams supplied higher quality, true gasoline at its necessarily higher price. The culmination of that policy, eagerly supported by appreciative motorists, has been

Feathers Fly
High on New Spring Hats

Pickle Dame Fashion forsakes the mannish trend in millinery for feminine trimmings of feathers and flowers as spring approaches. Flowers which have been entirely forsaken by the milliners are again pronounced the latest word in trimming. Feathers, also, are flying high.

FELT HATS

Felt hats worn by fashionists returning from Paris use either large clusters of flowers or small clusters of flowers as trimmings of modishness and turban. Where the brim is narrow or medium the large chrysanthemum, two-toned rose or cluster of violets is placed at the side back with petals extending over the brim. Wider brims even use the under-brim flower trim. Small turban-like brims have large flowers at the side front or clusters of small flowers over the ears. Black felt shapes trimmed in white chrysanthemums or violets are popular. Navy blue felts trimmed in white are also favored since the vogue for navy is gaining in popularity daily.

Feather flowers are sponsored this season, although they failed to meet with much success last spring. Feather flowers are prettiest when in harmonizing color with the hat. Some how feathers carried out in flower colorings are not as effective as feather carried out in solid costume tones. Shades of green, violet and purple are important millinery trims at present.

SMALL CLUSTERS

Instead of the flower shoulder corsage we occasionally see a feather corsage worn on the shoulder of the evening gown. A popular devotee of the feather wore a huge spray of coquie feathers on the shoulder of a white chiffon gown beaded in black crystals. An emerald green chiffon gown seen the same evening had a shoulder corsage of green dyed ostrich in shaded tones. Feather flowers in small clusters are worn on the lapel of the street costume occasionally, although one must admit that artificial flowers are more effective, for day wear.

The afternoon or evening gown that is without a corsage seems rather lacking in trimming unless it uses the popular velvet bow trimming to replace the floral decoration.

STUFFED BEET SALAD

Four medium-sized beets, 1 cup cottage cheese, 1/2 tablespoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1/2 teaspoon white pepper, head lettuce, mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 4 tablespoons salad oil.

Scrub beets and cook until tender. Dip in cold water and slip skins. When cool enough to handle, cut out centers. Sprinkle lemon juice and oil over beet cups and let stand, covered, in a cold place until thoroughly chilled, at least one hour. Season cottage cheese with salt, paprika and pepper and make moist with cream. Fill beet cups with mixture. Arrange on a bed of crisp lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

Finely chopped nuts, minced olives and pimientos can be added to the cheese. Orange marmalade combined with the cheese makes a delicious sweetish salad.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

IN half an hour, when old King Cole finished with his pipe and bowl, he chatted with the Tynymites, and said, "You'll like it here. I'm glad such fine friends I have found. Why don't you Times look around. The place is quite beautiful, and there is naught to fear."

"Oh, can we do that?" Coppy said. The king replied, "Go right ahead. I'll even send a guard along to show you this and that." And so a nice guard started out to show the Tynymites all about. They laughed at how the guard was dressed, and at his funny hat.

His shoes had long and pointed toes, and where he got them, goodness knows. His blouse had all the colors that you've ever heard about. His pantaloons puffed in the breeze and hung away above his knees. The Tynymites watched his antics then with laughter they would shout.

Each room they'd enter seemed grand. The Tynymites couldn't understand how just one king could use the things that filled the palace great.

With golden chairs and other things, enough for many, many kings, they found that he had put his home in quite a wondrous state. They went from bottom to the top and then, of course, they'd stop and peek out through the windows at the scenery down below. Then Coppy said, "Ah, there's a treat. I think I hear some music sweet. It comes from where the king is. That's the place where we should go."

So back they went and found the king. They wondered if he'd start to sing, for 'round him stood three little men, as cheerful as could be. "Oh, I know them," wee Clowdy said. "Of them we all have often read. When King Cole wants some music, he just calls his fiddlers, three."

Love Letters Of The Great

AS COMPILED BY DIANA RICE

GOETHE--1749-1832

"The beautiful-eyed, lovely, gentle Stein," said an eighteenth-century gallant in speaking of Goethe's Charlotte von Stein, the woman who held the fancy of this fickle poet longer than any other. Though Schiller denied her the possession of beauty "he called her a truly original, interesting person."

Goethe's devotion to Madame von Stein started soon after Dec. 6, 1775, which is the date carved (with Goethe's name) on a writing table at Kockberg, the country place of the von Steins. It was during the years of his close friendship with this woman, who was several years his senior, that Goethe wrote the plays Iphigenia, Tasso, and many short charming poems. He went to Italy in 1776. Madame von Stein refused to answer any of his letters and had his portrait removed from her room. Some said that Goethe's love affairs in Italy hastened the break, others that it was brought about by his scandalous behavior with the woman he subsequently married.

That Madame von Stein's affection for Goethe was not entirely crushed, nor his for her, would seem to be born out by the fact that on her death she asked that her coffin should not be carried past his house lest it cause him pain.

Goethe to Charlotte von Stein. Goethe wrote over a thousand letters to Charlotte von Stein. He averaged one in four days for ten years. Goethe met Madame von Stein in 1775. She had then been married seven years.

January 28, 1776. "Dear Angel—I shall not come to the concert, for I am so well that I cannot see people. Dear angel, I sent for my letters, and it vexed me that there was not among them one word from thee, not even in pencil—no good night. Dear lady, suffer it that I hold thee so dear. If I can love any one more, I will tell thee, will leave thee in peace. Adieu, Gold, thou comest not how I love thee."

May 24, 1776. "And so, a relation, the purest, the most beautiful, the truest that I have ever had with any woman, except my sister, that also is interrupted! I was prepared for it. I suffered infinitely for the past and the future, and for the poor child who went forth, and whom I devoted that moment to such suffering. I will not see you. Your presence would make me sad. If I cannot live with you, your love helps me as little as the love of my absent ones in which I am so rich. I reserve in the moment of need decides all, assures all, strengthens all. The absent comes with his fire hose when the fire is under. And if the man is not of the world, which can be nothing to me, will not allow thee to be anything to me. You do not know what you do. The hand of the lonely prisoner, who hears not voice of love, presses hard where it rests. Adieu, best one."

DO AMERICANS LIVE TOO MUCH?

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

ARNOLD BENNETT says in his book "Things That Have Happened to Me": "The papers are adorned with advertisements of experts who offer to teach the craft of earning incomes. But I doubt if I have ever seen the advertisement of an expert who was ready to teach how to spend incomes."

He proceeds to tell us that the French peasant is generally cited as the model of economical living. "True, but their work too hard and pinch too much, with the result that though they live well so far as they try to live, they do not try to live enough. They have developed ferocious instincts of avarice."

The American, both business man and artisan, works hard and spends hard. Mr. Bennett would likely call him extravagant, as he calls his English neighbor.

And without doubt he is right. Americans have made a national sport of money spending. We demand good houses to live in and good furniture in them. We demand good clothes and cars and theaters. We demand clubs and pleasure parks and dance floors. Not the rich man alone. The medium earner demands these things too. And does he save on his table to get these things? Not usually. He demands good food, too.

Is not the American going to the other extreme and living too much? "I have always maintained that each family's income and each family's spending was strictly its own business. But after all the most prosperous industrial institution may put up a sign, 'Safety First,' and no one reads it."

Shall we always live in the sun? Shall we always have an era of prosperity? What kind of an age will our children live in? We can't be sure of leaving them prosperity, but we can leave them a knowledge of the value of money if we start in time, which is late.

It is a good thing to teach them this principle of living, "If I buy this, I must do without that. Or if I give up this and that, it will be possible to buy the other thing." In other words, teach them the compensations of wise spending and the peace born of saving.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF SPRING SALES
WHEN PURCHASING UTENSILS

BY SISTER MARY
WITH the "Spring Sales" at hand, it behooves the housekeeper to look over her kitchen utensils and replace those in bad shape or add to her equipment.

Whenever an article is to be purchased and there are several shapes, sizes and materials from which to choose ask yourself these questions:

Will this shape fit in the average cupboard or kitchen cabinet? Will it fit my oven? If it's a roaster or baking dish, will it unroll on any serving dishes? If it's a mold of some sort, will it clean easily?

ONLY FOR GUESTS

Will this shape prove adequate for average occasions? There are some utensils that are used almost only when guests are expected or on festive occasions. A large roaster is one of these. A roaster large enough to hold a ten-pound turkey is much larger than is necessary for the "Sunday roast" for the average family of three or four persons. The big roaster fills the oven so that other baking cannot be done with the same heat and will probably take up too much valuable room in the kitchen cupboard.

So if your dining room is too small to serve more than six persons comfortably don't buy big sizes in anything. Seven and five-inch frying pans are convenient for the family of two to four persons and 2-quart saucepans are adequate. Small saucepans for making sauces should be provided and included in every list of kitchen equipment. The likes and dislikes of members of the family must be considered in choosing sizes, for this determines the quantity to be cooked.

SOME HEAVY, SOME LIGHT
Will this material clean easily, will it stand hard wear, intense heat, is it light to handle?

Certain kinds of cooking utensils must be made of heavy materials while others may be as light weight as you prefer them.

Some utensils are used oftener than others and must be made of a material to stand this frequent and almost constant wear.

The fuel you burn has much to do with the material chosen. Iron is the best material for frying pans or "spiders." It holds the heat and requires little fat. Cast aluminum is good but more expensive. Covers should sit closely on kettles and saucepans but one for each pan is not necessary if adjustable covers are used.

THERE IS A DIFFERENCE
The chief difference between a saucepan and a kettle is that the kettle has a pale handle made of heavy wire looped over the top and the saucepan has a handle extending from one side. Notice how this handle is fastened to the pan.

A saucepan tips over easier than a kettle because of this handle but the handle makes it easier to use for many things. It's easier to pour from a saucepan than from a kettle for one thing and if the pan must be held while some concoction is stirred the handle makes it possible to hold the pan firmly and with less danger of burned fingers and holders over a gas fire.

THESE ARE ESSENTIAL

Wooden mixing spoons, two sizes, from spoons, a spatula, paring knives of stainless steel, Dover egg beater, wire basket, potato masher, vegetable ricer, one long-handled two-tined fork—these are essential in the simplest equipment and should always be in good condition. A long thin knife of the finest steel obtainable for cutting bread or cake will be worth buying. Good steel will stand much sharpening and keep its edge as a cheaper grade cannot do.

CHAPEL MOSAIC
SHOWS VIRGIN
AS DAUGHTER

Chicago—"A mother and daughter" chapel in Our Lady of Mount Carmel church offers Chicago Catholics a miniature place of devotion which has come to be a much-sought shrine. Its distinction lies in the portrayal of the mother of Christ, not as a mother, but as a daughter. A great mosaic altar piece pictures Mary as a young girl listening to her mother, St. Anne.

PRESENTS DAUGHTERS

New York—An American woman artist interrupted her career to present two young daughters at the Court of St. James. She is Olive Bigelow, known in society as Mrs. Bigelow Tilton. After the girls were presented Mrs. Tilton came to New York to hold an exhibition of her paintings, including portraits of Princess Immieretinsk, Princesses Heanska, Lady Constance Leslie, F. K. Julliard, Charles Dana Gibson and Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Guest of London.

RIDES TO HOUNDS

Paris—The Duchess d'Uzes, dean of the world's huntswomen, rode to hounds in the forest of Rambouillet, France, to celebrate her eightieth birthday. Descendants of lords and ladies who hunted in the same forest in the Duchess' youth, and inspired poets and painters of the nineteenth century, attended her as part of a picturesque procession in which her pedigreed hounds played a conspicuous part.

POLITICAL HOSTESS

London—Lady Londonderry, who entertained for the government on the eve of the opening of parliament, is the wife and daughter of politicians and carries on the traditions of political hospitality handed down by her mother-in-law, who was one of the greatest hostesses of her generation. Londonderry House, her London home, is one of the few famous residences suited to political receptions on a grand scale.

Lady Londonderry has the distinction of being one of the first British women magistrates. During the war, she inaugurated the plan of training women to replace men as army cooks. She is keenly interested in child welfare work and the status of domestic servants. She also found time to write the memoirs of her father, Lord Cholmondeley, who for 40 years was a member of the House of Commons.

COUNTLESS women have discarded old-time "sanitary" pads for a new and better way.

A way that offers far greater protection. A way, too, that banishes the old-time problem of disposal.

Eight in 10 better-class women now use "KOTEX."

Discards as easily as tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment. Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

Deodorizes, thus ending all danger of offending.

Obtainable at all drug and department stores simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

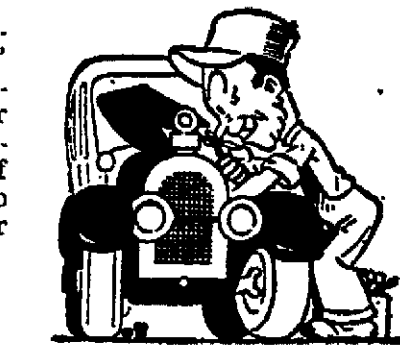

Be sure to get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex. Proves old ways a needless risk. In fairness to yourself, try it.

"JIM THE CONQUEROR"

NEW KYNE FILM HIT

That delightful romance, Peter B. Kyne, seems to have a particular penchant for writing stories that register effectively on the screen. The latest photoplay based on a Kyne story, "Jim the Conqueror," which opens at Fischer's Appleton theatre tonight, maintains the record of screen successes made from this popular writer's books.

"Jim the Conqueror" is a melodrama of modern ranching and modern romance. It starts in Italy and culminates on the great American plains, with William Boyd in the role of a hard-fighting, fast shooting conqueror of hearts and tamer of bad cattle men of the West. The crux of the drama is a battle for land and water hole rights—a never-ending feud between the sheepmen and cattle barons of the plains. Through this vital melodrama, punctuated with exciting situations and whizzing bullets, there runs the tender romance of a boy and a girl whose happiness is jeopardized through their heritage of feud traditions. It all ends happily, however, when the opposing forces are finally reconciled to the fact that "right is right."

William Boyd, who is rapidly rising to stellar heights, scores heavily in a role that fits him admirably. Boyd is a rugged and handsome type who registers strongly with all classes of movie audiences, and in the role of Jim Burgess he adds another notable characterization to his growing list of screen impersonations.

"THE HANDSOME BRUTE" William Fairbanks has been a star in so many thrillers and fight-action specials that it seems as though it were impossible to beat his own record. Yet, according to pre-view notice, it looks like the popular actor-athlete has outdone himself in his last production.

"Big Bill," as he is affectionately known, has a novel role: that of a young rookie who suffers a great deal of embarrassment before he attains glory as a policeman.

The story itself is said to offer unusual opportunities to Fairbanks to distinguish himself in the type of action that has made him a popular figure wherever pictures are shown.

"The Handsome Brute" is scheduled for the New Bijou today and Saturday.

FINANCIAL PROBLEMS BOTHER NEW YORK BALL CLUBS

M'Graw Turns Attention To Help Sell Hornsby's St. Louis Card Stock

Huggins Prepares "Line" for Talk With Pennock; Sox Swamp Wichita

Moulding pennant contenders in field, training camps of New York's major league teams has been temporarily pushed into the background by problems of high finance.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants turned his attention to Rogers Hornsby and the 1,145 shares of Cardinal stock he had failed to sell since he donned a Gotham uniform. Rogers still declines to part with the stock for less than $100 a share.

At the Yankees camp Manager Miller Huggins loaded up with verbal ammunition for a final interview with his star southpaw, Herb Pennock, who has been holding out for a $20,000 salary.

Hits bounced in abundance off bats of all three metropolitan clubs Thursday in exhibition contests, the Robins bombarding Browns for an 8 to 5 verdict at Tarpon Springs and the Giants pounding St. Augustine. The Yankees, however, ran second to the Braves in a slugfest, 10-9, at St. Petersburg.

Rube Walberg turned back the Buffalo Internationals at Palmto, 9-3 for the Phillies. Cobb played seven innings and hit two singles in four tries.

The Philadelphia Nationals at Tampa defeated Washington, 12 to 5. Humidity is playing havoc with the Boston Red Sox at New Orleans but most of the cripples are back on the diamond.

Homebound bound, the Chicago Cubs have left their Catalina Island training camp for their third and final three-game series with the southern Chicago branch of the coast league.

Manager Ray Schalk of the White Sox sent his southpaw "find," Charley Barnabe for the full nine innings against Wichita Falls and as result got a 15-5 victory.

The Washington Senators rest Friday. Thursday they received a 12-5 trouncing from the Philadelphia Nationals.

Manager Bob O'Farrell's St. Louis Cardinals Friday faced Quakers of Stuffy McInnis by whom they were beaten 8-7 last Friday. Silence brooded over Thursday's defeat, 6 to 1, by the Cleveland Indians. Four errors told the story. A similar tale told at Tarpon Springs where Browns were beaten by Brooklyn, 8-5.

Pirates bested the Seals in San Francisco Thursday in a slugfest, 18 to 11. After more than four years of intensive training Manager Marjorie believes he has eliminated any tendency for "individualism" from Detroit teams play and now has a smooth, easy running baseball machine that will make a strong bid for championship honors.

Manager Jack McCallister of the Cleveland Indians was cheered Friday with the news that George Uhle's arm chosen to hoist the ball against the Chicago Sox in the opening game here, was improved and that Uhle would be active in practice from now on. Indians Thursday defeated St. Louis Cardinals, 8 to 1, at Lakeland, Fla.

Cincinnati Nationals and Indianapolis American Association teams closed their series Friday. Reds trounced the Indians Thursday, 11 to 5.

BLUE GRAPPLERS MEET BAY TRIANGLE SQUAD

Six Lawrence college grapplers will face six stars of the Green Bay Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock Friday evening at Alexander gymnasium in the first real match of the year for the Blues. The Blue five will be composed of all-campus champions at the various weights and will meet a veteran team coached by Carl Zoll, former state heavy champion.

Youth Of Cubs Pleading To Manager Joe M'Carthy

Avalon, Catalina Island—"If we're any better than we were last year we will be a tough club."

That's from Manager Joe McCarthy at the spring training camp of the Chicago Cubs here.

"The boys look like improved ball players but you never can tell until the season actually is under way."

The Cubs will put practically the same team on the diamond as they did in 1925. They don't look like pennant winners but they are of first division quality and might easily be considered a "dark horse" in the long race for the bunting.

"Very few of our boys are what you would call great ball players. But they are a hustling young gang and fellows show so much pep during spring training. These boys would play a full game every morning and afternoon if I would permit it."

"Another thing in my favor is the youthfulness of the club. Only two men on the entire team have passed the thirty mark and they both had remarkable seasons last year. In the matter of years, I believe we have the youngest club in the National League."

The Bruins can still use a couple of good pitchers. Charley Root, Kaufmann and Osborne are the mainstays of the pitching staff. Bach, Blake and Jones round out the regulars. On the receiving end of the battery they are Madison Central ended out a 25 to 16 win over Wausau in the last game of the second day's competition. LaCrosse flashed the best brand of basketball of the tourney to defeat Wausau, 25 to 6.

A wide margin held at half time by the Capital City boys was quickly cut down by Wausau after a few minutes of play in the final period twice during the session Wausau was within two points of the winners only to crack in the last two minutes allowing the Madison five to drop three under the basket shots through the hoop.

LaCrosse, red-jerseyed and brilliant, showed a flashy short pass attack and accurate basket eyes to swamp the Madison five in one of the roughest games of the tournament to gain the right for semi-final play. Both Kenosha and Eau Claire use a smooth passing game which should result in a hard fought game.

In their first real test of tournament competition, Madison Central failed to equal performances of previous games and should have difficulty in stopping the LaCrosse combination.

Peters and Gantenbein, forward and guard respectively for the River city team, criss-crossed down the floor for numerous close-in shots while defeating Wausau. Both men are veterans in tournament play.

Madison's attack was erratic and guarding comparatively loose. Kenosha with one of the fastest guards of the field in the person of Jensen, should give Eau Claire a battle throughout the entire session, with the result a tossup on tournament performance.

Any other merchants wishing to donate prizes for the meet can leave them at the Elk club, according to Walter Schultz, secretary of the tourney. A big weekend of bowling, featured by practically all regulars in the five-man event, doubles and singles will start at 7 o'clock Friday evening when six Kaukauna teams take the alleys. Over the weekend until Monday evening bowlers from Kaukauna, Blair, New London, Fond du Lac, Milwaukee, Appleton, Pewaukee, South Milwaukee, Sheboygan, Port Washington, Sun Prairie, Cedarburg and Manitowish, will take the drives. Monday evening Appleton Boosters teams again will see action.

Dave's Dots And Dashes

The season for all-conference basketball teams is about over and some dozen mythical squads have appeared in print. Testwilde of Sheboygan was picked on practically every selection along with Stanis and Herber. Lutz was favored by many of the experts along with Hanson of Fondy and Fishbeck and Fischl, Manitowish.

Final score records of the Little Eight show Testwilde leading the pack with 107. Fishbeck of Manitowish is second, 97; Herber, W. Green Bay, third, 88; Lutz, Appleton, fourth 82 and Manis, Fond du Lac, fifth, 60. In collecting his peak total, Testwilde scored 44 field baskets and 15 foul line tosses.

Testwilde is the only man to be chosen unanimously for conference teams, his scoring power in leading the conference with over 100 points, including 44 field goals, giving him the job. Lutz lost out only at Manitowish as did Manis, center, and Hanson lost out only at Appleton. Herber was placed on three first teams and about the same number of seconds.

Our guesses on the state classic are getting better each day. "Guessing" on the championship fight, we now have a record of one mistake in twelve games played or 217. We picked Ladysmith to beat Waupun but the Prison city five upset all dope. Yesterday we chose Eau Claire to beat Ashland, LaCrosse to triumph over Kenosha, while Platterville and Madison Central to trim Wausau. This all came out fine. We still have the four toughest games of the meet ahead of us, however, games that probably will be undecided until the last minute and then the teams are so evenly matched that a lucky basket may decide the issue, deciding it against one of our choices.

Still we repeat Eau Claire to beat Kenosha, LaCrosse to beat Madison, LaCrosse to beat Eau Claire and Kenosha to beat Madison. Oshkosh by the way, practically has the 1928 valley conference cage banner or at least second place clinched to hear her talk. As every team but West loses practically the entire 1927 team and Oshkosh has every man and every sub back she claims she can win every team but West with ease and perhaps that squad also. Here's the best which includes beating Appleton twice with no trouble at all.

N. E. SHOOTERS HOLD MEET HERE ON AUG. 21

Appleton Angling and Shooting club will be host to shooters of the Northeast Wisconsin Trapshooting League on Aug. 21 in a tournament at the new club grounds on the Neenah road, according to the schedule of shoots for 1927 issued this week by W. S. Butterick, Green Bay, secretary of the league. Kaukauna will entertain the shooters July 10. Each member club is given one date. Others are Oconto, May 29; Manitowish, June 28; Waupaca, Aug. 7; Green Bay, Sept. 4. All clubs are invited to each shoot held under national regulations.

SENIOR GIRLS TAKE BLUE MAPLE TOURNAMENT

By defeating the sophomores, 1,638 to 1,623, the senior class team won the yearly women's bowling tournament at Lawrence college this week. Constantine Raymakers of Green Bay, a member of the senior lineup, led the scoring for individuals by cracking out a high game total of 202 and a high match score of 446. She was followed by Mildred Feller, Kaukauna, a sophomore, who rolled 150 for the second high game score, and made a match total of 492.

IOWA ATHLETES TO VISIT TEN STATES IN STRONG EVENTS

30 Contests on Cards from April to June; Ball Squad Busy

Iowa City—Ten states will be visited by the four University of Iowa spring sports teams which will compete in 30 contests between April and June, the schedules show. Swimmers oversteer their normal season to compete in National Collegiate championships.

Every other Western Conference team except Purdue and Ohio State will be met before the 23 dual Big Ten contests are completed. Illinois, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Minnesota each will be met four times while three of the contests are with Michigan teams and two each with Indiana and Chicago.

Hawkeye athletes will qualify as experienced travelers after they have competed in six contests in Mississippi, five in Illinois, three in Wisconsin, two each in Minnesota, Missouri and Michigan and one in Ohio, Kansas, Pennsylvania and Indiana.

TWELVE HOME AFFAIRS
Only 13 of the 33 contests are home affairs, and all except four are two-team combats. Championship meets include the National Collegiate swimming meet at Iowa City, the National Collegiate track meet at Chicago, the Western Conference track championships at Madison, and the Big Ten tennis tournament at Chicago.

BASE TEAM PLAYS 20 GAMES
A summary reveals that the baseball team, which swings around the Dixie loop for eight games in April, will be the busiest. Twelve men will compete in nine meets, only three of which are duals; tennis players in six contests and golfers in three, with the possibility of two more for the freshmen.

When writing a book, Bazac sometimes worked from eighteen to twenty hours a day for several weeks.

PLAN STATE HOME TALENT BALL LOOP

Calls Meeting Here for State Circuit; Valley Schedule Completed

A home talent baseball association for Wisconsin is expected to be formed here Sunday at the Conway hotel at a meeting called by C. L. PreFontaine, Fond du Lac, president of two home talent loops, the Fox River Valley and Lake Winnebago. There are several home talent loops in the state and these will be asked to join the association.

In calling the session, Mr. PreFontaine says: "The wonderful strides made by home talent baseball in Wisconsin the last few years have brought about a condition wherein an association of leagues comprising this class of ball is essential."

"This association must have an objective, the advancement of the sport, the protection of territory, franchises, players' rights, mutual honoring of contracts and exchanges of ideas. Plans will be discussed and I will lay before these present my outline, which is entirely different than any heretofore undertaken."

VALLEY CARD OUT
The regular meeting of the Valley loop also will be held and this will be an important session as the season's schedule probably will be adopted. A committee was appointed at the last meeting two weeks ago to prepare a schedule and present it Sunday for

INSTALL NEW MOTORS IN TELEGRAPH OFFICE

Three new motors were installed in the local office of the Western Union Telegraph company this week to generate electricity for a duplex wire which will be operated between Appleton and Chicago office. The duplex wire will enable the local management to send and receive twice as many messages from Chicago, according to Walter Storck, manager.

Formerly a rectifier was used and the current was received from the local power line. A direct wire was maintained with Chicago but messages could be sent only one way. The new arrangement, which was put into operation Tuesday, makes it possible for one operator to receive messages over this wire while at the same time another operator can be sending messages over the same line.

MAILMAN INJURES HAND ON FAULTY MAIL BOX

A few mail boxes in the city are in poor condition and one mail carrier returned to the postoffice with a badly lacerated hand from one of these rusted and worn boxes this week, it was reported at the postoffice. The metal boxes become corroded from rain and snow, and become broken and jagged. These should be replaced. When a box is considered by the carrier to be dangerous, he is permitted to refuse to carry mail to the house any longer.

Numbers on the Appleton houses approval. Other matters to get the loop successfully underway in May also will be completed.

ROAD WORK HALTED BY SCARCITY OF CINDERS

Scarcity of cinders and the fact that most gravel pits near the city are inaccessible on account of muddy roads has brought road repair work here to a standstill, according to R. F. Hackworthy, street commissioner. Practically all available cinders in the city have been used and attempts to locate more have been fruitless.

Frank Murphy, Little Chute, still must complete his contract to furnish 1,200 yards of gravel to the city at $1.55 per yard. However, roads leading to the pits from which Mr. Murphy takes his gravel are too muddy and it is possible that no gravel can be secured there for at least a week. Mr. Murphy must supply about 600 yards of gravel to complete his contract.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Death strikes GARRETT FOLSON while swimming at Ocean Town, N. J. It is thought at first he is a stroke victim, but investigation shows he has been stabbed to death beneath the water.

Folsom's bathing companions had been ROGER NEVILLE, MRS. HELEN BARNABY, and CARMELITA WALDON. It is established that Folsom, just before his death, had been standing next to NED BARRON, known as the copper king.

ANASTASIA FOLSOM, eccentric and masterful sister of the dead man, arrives and takes command. At the inquest it is established that the "death weapon" was a piquet, an Oriental knife, and that it and its scabbard had been purchased on the boardwalk.

It is also established that one CROYDON SEARS is a fancier of curious knives. Anastasia engages TITUS RIGGS, an architect, to work on the case. DAN PELTON, the dead man's nephew, arrives, and notices the curious French dolls in Garrett Folsom's room. He tells Titus RIGGS he believes his uncle had been guilty of blackmailing a number of people, and together they go through Folsom's papers.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII
But it was a thankless task. Mostly the documents were of no great importance and of no evidently suspicious character. It was plain to be seen that Garrett Folsom had packed the lot while in Chicago and brought them to New York, to be attended to there.

For there were various matters that concerned New York business men, and some contracts and estimates that had to do with New York firms.

But of anything touching on a nefarious pursuit, or unlawful bribery or corruption, they found no trace.

That is, until the very last, when Dan Pelton turned the little suitcase upside down and gave it a final shake, and an unobtrusive pocket in the lining slipped open. Out dropped a small memorandum book.

It was old and worn, and had evidently been hidden in the pocket purposefully.

The two men pounced upon it and found it to be full of various notes and dates, which obviously referred to private matters.

"Whatever it's all about," Pelton said, "it's not meant for the general public. But many of the entries date back and many of the notes are crossed out. I fancy he had this book in use for years."

"Looks so," agreed Riggs, "but I can't see as it's going to mean much to us, unless we can make out who the people are."

"Well, here's one that seems familiar. Toward the last, near the initials C. R. S., and repeated several times."

"And who may C. R. S. be?"

"That's just it. He may be, possibly, Croydon Rochester Sears."

"Croydon Sears? Impossible! That man's white clear through. I don't know him very well, but I do know him, and I know nothing but good of him."

"That doesn't count, Riggs. If there was a black spot on his past, you wouldn't know it—but Garrett Folsom might have."

"Can you get his head or tail to these notes about C. R. S.?"

"They are vague, and yet they are definite, too. Definite in expression, that is, though vague in meaning or allusion."

"One says, 'C. R. S. Keep on 'tenterhooks.' Another, 'Sears a little tighter.' And another, 'Refer to secrets, but lightly.' It seems to me such notes can only mean that uncle held a club over the head of Mr. Sears."

"Do you know Sears well?"

"Not so very. But I've known him in a general way for years. And I'd back him to the last ditch. His reputation is unassailable. But Uncle Garry may have known of some plot. Fairly indiscreet, or something. There's no use pretending uncle was perfect, just because he's dead."

"Pelton, you use the word blackmail with a careless touch. It's a dangerous and uncertain game. More than in most ventures, if you push your victim too far, you come to a cropper yourself."

"Well, Garrett Folsom wasn't the man to come croppers. If that's the case, then I'll bet he never pushed a victim too far."

"He did—if he was murdered for doing so."

Pelton stared.

Meaning, in plain English, the suggestion that he was hounding Sears about this "secret" which unquestionably existed, and that in consequence, Sears humped him off."

"Meaning that it is certainly among the possibilities."

"Then, I say, as I said from the start, I'd rather let sleeping dogs lie, drop the investigation, and let the bones of Garrett Folsom rest in peace."

"The investigation will not be dropped!" cried a strident voice, and Miss Folsom stamped into the room. "I heard what you said, Dan, as I reared the door. And it's not up to you to say what shall be done. I engaged Mr. Riggs; he is working for me, and I forbid you to interfere in any manner."

"Oh, come, now, Aunt Stasia," said Pelton, "you don't want to uncover a lot of stuff that would reflect on Uncle Garrett's character. Do you?"

"Nothing like that CAN be uncovered! There is nothing in my brother's life that may not be shown to the light of day! Don't you suppose I knew my brother? And he has been murdered, and for some reason or other you are trying to hush things up. First thing you know, you'll get yourself suspected."

"Good Lord, auntie, how you do go on!"

Even in this serious situation Dan was amused, as he always was, at his aunt's vehemence.

"I'll thank you, don't keep out of it all. You can't help, and if you could you wouldn't. Now take your finger out of the pie and leave the investigation to those who are capable of conducting it."

Her scorn, as shown on her haughty face, might have withered one less need to it, but it was old stuff to Dan Pelton.

"All right," he said, "but don't blame me when you find you have brought public notoriety and shame on the memory of the man you loved so well."

"What do you mean?"

He looked at Riggs and shrugged his shoulders.

"You see, madam," and Titus Riggs concluded frankness was his duty. "We've run across some notes and papers that seem to show Mr. Folsom had some people at his mercy."

"At his mercy? What do you mean by that?"

"That their reputations were at his mercy. That he knew their secrets and it gave him a hold over them."

"My brother knew the secrets of many people. It was the confidence and counsel of many. If that gave him a hold over them it was the hold of gratitude and thankfulness for his assistance."

"Aunt, you're priceless! I think, Riggs, you'd better tell her all."

"Mr. Riggs will most certainly tell me all."

Miss Folsom's eyes began to glitter and her voice took on a dominating tone that had, nevertheless, Dan noted, a slight tinge of fear in it.

"Then, Miss Folsom, to put the matter in a few words, we have found some papers."

"You told me that before."

"Some papers that indicate transactions or arrangements of a nature far from creditable to Mr. Folsom."

"Speak out more plainly. What are they?"

"I'll read you some, instead."

He opened the worn notebook and read:

"P. L.: Positive of the perjury matter. J. N. S.: No doubt of the truth of K's report. T. C.: Have absolute proof of his guilt."

"Now I'm sorry to hurt you further, but on another page a series of large numbers would seem to indicate sums paid by these individuals, as the figures are opposite the initials we have noted, and the dates are consecutive—and recent."

"I think, Mr. Riggs, you read a meaning into those notes to suit yourself. I think if truth were known, they represent the friends who, as I told you, consulted with my brother and he advised and helped them. The figures, of course, we cannot understand, but none of it is one iota of proof or even an indication that my brother had an unlawful hold over these people."

"I have not seen such great faith, no, not in all Israel," murmured Pelton, who was fond of quotation.

"Be quiet, Dan," said his aunt.

"Now, Mr. Riggs, you seem extraordinarily blind to facts, as you call them. If these are facts, I mean in the way you interpret them, then it is clear that my brother's murderer must have been, one of these victims, as you put it, of his tyranny. If so, I want that man found and hanged, and I will accept the consequences of any opprobrium that may bring to my brother's name."

"Then you want me to go ahead and investigate these notes, it possible, irrespective of the outcome?"

"Go ahead, full steam!" declared Miss Folsom.

Again the strange dolls that Garrett Folsom owned intrude on the mystery. What was their real significance?

HEILIG AGAIN FAILS TO GET CHANCE TO SPEAK

Herb Heilig, director of the Appleton Vocational school attended a hearing on the proposed bill to lower the compulsory school attendance age limit before the public welfare committee of the state legislature at Madison Wednesday afternoon. Advocates of the bill used almost the entire afternoon speaking in favor of the measure and only a few opponents were given a chance to speak toward the end of the session, according to Mr. Heilig. Others were to file their letters or briefs.

PROPOSE ACTION IN COURTS OVER SURVEY ON WOLF

Suit Will Test Whether State or Federal Government Has Jurisdiction

Suit to test whether the federal government or state government has jurisdiction over water power rights in the Menominee Indian reservation probably will be instituted by Wisconsin, according to Mark Catlin, who was in Madison last week conferring with state officials.

Nature lovers and outdoor men of the state, and especially in the Fox river valley, are incensed over the action of the Federal Water Power commission at Washington, D. C., in granting a permit to the Wisconsin Light and Power Co. to conduct a survey of the Wolf river to determine whether it would be feasible to harness the river for its water power.

Although the reservation is under the control of the federal government, it is contended that jurisdiction over water power rights in this area are under the control of the state, as are other state waters, and that the federal government exceeded its rights in granting the permit to the power company.

The procedure followed in granting the permit also has been severely criticized, according to Mr. Catlin. Without giving opponents of the proposal an opportunity to express themselves, the deal was quietly transacted between the government and power company, it is reported.

Mr. Catlin, who has been one of the leaders in the fight against proposed construction of a dam on the Wolf river, said that in the impending suit it will be contended that the federal government has no authority to grant a permit for a dam above Shawano because the river above Shawano is not navigable, as contemplated by the federal statutes.

Charges were made by Mr. Catlin that Wisconsin power utilities have formed a statewide trust, dividing the water power energy, and the market.

"As a matter of fact, I have seen the map and plans for the division of the entire state among the utilities," he said. "It is putting all the power rights into one corporation and stifling the right of competition."

"I object to its proceeding on the finest scenic spot in Wisconsin. The idea of flood control is idle talk. This grant means that the Wisconsin Power and Light Co. ultimately will build a plant and pay the Indians a mere pittance, about two mills a kilowatt."

"Do we want to see Keshena Falls, the Dells of the Wolf, Big Eddy and other spots desecrated by power stations? They would make a mill pond and a spillway of a district that attracts 5,000 people a day because of its beauty?"

"I feel that the state is ready to buy that property to save it." Mr. Catlin also raised the legal point of whether the government had the right to lease the tribal lands of any corporation.

ALFORD GIVES $500 TO BUILD GYM AT LAWRENCE

A gift of $500 was received by Lawrence college Thursday from W. H. Alford, one of the officials of the Nash Motor Co. of Kenosha. The sum will be applied to the new gymnasium fund at the school.

Oxford University has posted a notice at the dining hall that men wearing knickers will not be served there.

Concert Master Happier Performing For Radio

BY VIRGINIA SWAIN
New York. — "The loneliest place in the world is the director's stand in a crowded hall."

"The man who stands on the platform is lost to human intercourse, set apart from the throng enjoying his music."

Station WEAF, Walter Damrosch, dean of American concert masters, speaking. He is telling why, after 12 years on the concert stage, he likes being a radio performer better than a concert artist. Please stand by.

"It's like this. When I was touring the country with my orchestra, I had absolutely no contact with humanity at large."

"I travelled from one town to the next, went straight to the hotel, drank a cup of tea and went to the concert hall, returned to the hotel, had supper sent up, and went to bed. Next day, I went through it again."

"My audiences were large, it is true. But their handclapping and their dollars were the only message that came from them to me."

STUDIO A FRIENDLY SPOT
"I never knew about them individually, what they really thought about my music, how they lived, what sort of human beings they were."

"As I looked out from my little platform, I saw only a blur of faces. 'I never knew America until this year.'"

But now, Stand by some more, Walter Damrosch speaks of the joys of a radio audience.

"The friendliest spot I know is a broadcasting studio, empty but for me, its gray draperies shutting out the discords of the city, its gleaming microphone standing ready to take my music from my finger tips straight to the souls of men — millions of men, women and little children."

"There is no glaring barrier of footlights, no sense of crowding and hurry and strain. I sit down and talk straight to the America I love."

"After 12 years I am at home." And there it is, Walter Damrosch, concert celebrity, signs off, and Walter Damrosch, friend and messiah to the lonely, signs on.

For it is not merely his own loneliness that he is banishing. His radio recitals are broadcasting the cheer and warmth of great art to human beings who have never before felt its radiance.

JOY TO A LONELY SHEPHERD
And the clatter of hands has given way to a better kind of "thank you," in the form of letters from all parts of the continent. Every mail brings him word from shut-ins farmers' wives, dwellers in places where good music has never before penetrated.

There is the recent letter from a shepherd in Saskatchewan, who wrote him, "I have been out in the snow all day, taking care of my flocks. Tonight I sit before a fire in my cabin, and I hear your music."

Then there are love letters from children that flood in. As many ten-year-old sweethearts are writing Damrosch as write the handsomest movie hero.

The opera recitals given by Damrosch every other Saturday night from nine o'clock 'til ten are finding a large audience among school children.

Their success has led Mr. Damrosch to lay plans for developing the musical education of all school children throughout the country, by means of afternoon orchestral concerts for which every school in America might tune in.

"If I could give American children an afternoon a week of good music."

I could make our people the most musical in the world.

OPERA RECITALS INITIAL STEP
"This may sound like a fantastic dream, but I consider it quite possible it would simply mean that every school would need a good receiving set with loud speaker. Since the radio will inevitably be used for other educational purposes in the schools, I believe generous people all over the country would be found to help the schools get their sets."

One of the initial steps in broadcasting musical education is the opera recitals now being given. Mr. Damrosch compresses into his program the spoken story and the main musical themes of an opera, with the help of a trio or quartet to sing the best songs to his piano accompaniment. He gives enough of "Siegfried" or "Tannhauser" or "Faust" to tease

RESUME MONEY ORDER SERVICE WITH GREECE

Money order service between the United States and Greece will be resumed April 1, according to the post-office department. "The amount of orders drawn for payment in that country is to be expressed in dollars and cents only. Remitters must be required to furnish the given names of payees as they are known to the Greek postal authorities; for example, Panagiotis, Demetrius, or Athanasius, etc. The Americanized versions of these names which are the newly initiated listener into seeking more.

By the sample system, Walter Damrosch is selling classic opera to America.

frequently used by Greeks here, as "Pete," "Jim" or "Tom," will result in delay in payment and occasion much unnecessary correspondence between the foreign office and this department," the announcement continued.

Payment in this country of orders drawn in Greece will be made by means of money orders reissued by the New York exchange office.

In The Days of Barter and Trading

It was the custom of men to exchange things that they made or raised for things that some one else made or raised. This was a goodly custom, but the shrewdest bargainers always had the advantage.

Here at this modern market, Voecks Bros. have one set standard price on everything. This price is based on just what the merchandise is—it is as low as good quality can stand and it is the same to everyone.

Nan: "No, but he will be when he gets the bill for it!"

WHEN BLACK IS READ
Not a Caveman!
I never swat my sweetie on the nose;
I hardly ever pound her to a pulp;
I never, never strike her with a poolie
Or choke her by the neck to make her gulp;
I never wham my honey with a grudge on
Or try to tear up divots from her bean;
Or smack her in the kisser with a bludgeon—
Except sometimes when she is acting mean!

—Dora, the Globe Trotter

PLAUSIBLE STORY
The tramp caught with the chicken's corpse,
Declared to Farmer Keggs,
"Don't think, kind sir, I stole this hen."
I neither steals nor begs.
I merely fried this hen to see
If she would lay fried eggs!"
—Rosanne Frank

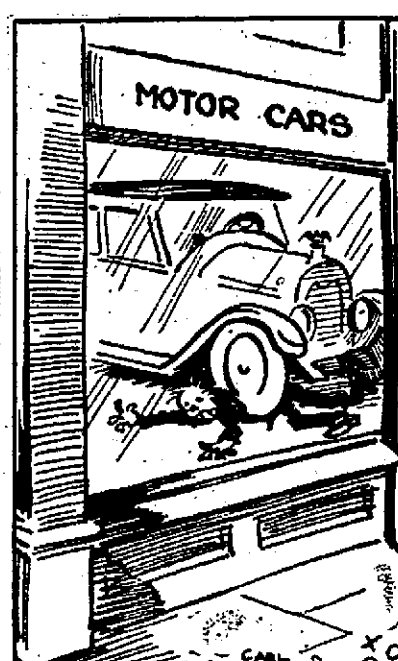

We All Do!
She laughed when she told me her name.
She laughed when I asked for a date.
She laughed when my lips fell softly on hers.
That night at the garden gate,
She laughed when she turned me down.
And she laughed when she saw I was blue.
And now, when I see how she's changed since she wed
—I can manage a chuckle or two!

Essay Contest for Appleton High School Students

First Prize: $10 in Cash
Second Prize: $5 in Merchandise
Subject: Silk or Wool Fabrics

This Essay Contest is to be open to all Appleton High School students except those who are members of the immediate family of persons employed at Pettibone's. Students who wish to compete are requested to come to the Advertising Department and register their names and addresses. As the contest will last only from March 26 until April 9, be sure to register early—tomorrow if possible. (On account of spring vacation, the time limit of the contest has been advanced to April 9 instead of April 6, as originally planned.)

The essays may cover such topics as the growth of the plant or animal product which makes up the fabric, its culture, its manufacture into the thread or yarn and finally the manufacture into the completed fabric. This may be handled in any way the writer wishes and he is not limited to these phases of the subject. The more original he is, the better. High school students will write on Silk or Wool only, not on both. Essays are to be limited to 1,000 words.

Before the essay is handed in to the Advertising Department, the writer is asked to indicate at the end of it the sources from which he took the material, the books, magazines, etc., with page references.

Judges will be persons not connected in any way with Pettibone's and names will be withheld from them so that they will not know whose papers they are reading. Typewritten manuscripts are preferred, but hand-written ones that are neat and legible will receive equal consideration. The contest will end at 6 P. M. Saturday, April 2, at which time all manuscripts must be in the advertising department.

FIRST PRIZE: $10 in cash; Second Prize: $5 in merchandise to be selected by the winner of the prize. Prizes will be awarded as soon after the conclusion of the contest as the judges can finish their work and names of the winners will be announced in the Post-Crescent.

A Separate Essay Contest for All Junior High School Students in Appleton

Sources of material to be indicated at the end of the essay. This contest will begin on Saturday, March 26 and end on April 2.

FIRST PRIZE: $10 in cash; Second Prize: $5 in merchandise to be selected by the winner of the prize. Names of winners will be announced in the Post-Crescent. The Junior High School Contest is entirely separate from that for Appleton High School students.
